

RAILROADS AND PUBLIC

Ownership Question Will Come Up in Congress.

BURLERSON HAS A RESOLUTION

Texas Congressman Will Endeavor to Obtain Facts Which May Form Basis for Discussion—Senator Bailey's Reported Intention of Making Speech in Opposition.

Although there has been comparatively little discussion of the question of public ownership of railways since the temporary excitement caused by Mr. Bryan's pronouncement died away, it is evident that the topic is still alive, and that it will figure to a considerable extent in the forthcoming session of Congress.

Mr. Bryan, it appears, is not enamored of the public ownership idea to an extent which will impel him to insist that it be embodied in the next Democratic national platform. In other words, he personally favors the ownership of railways, and perhaps other utilities, by the State and Federal governments, but apparently is not sufficiently certain of the merit of the plan to fight for its inclusion in the declaration of principles and policies which the Democratic party will formulate in the summer of 1908. His desire, in favor of public ownership, made in the course of the campaign, delivered in New York, just after he returned from his trip around the world, was not well received by Democrats in any part of the country, generally speaking, and those of the South were especially vigorous in their expressions of disapproval. Practically every Democrat of national prominence in the South—Minority Leader Williams, Senators Culberson and Bailey, of Texas, and numerous others—has indicated his opposition to this latest idea of Mr. Bryan, and the Senate has been united in a declaration that it is wholly impracticable. Some of these papers have conducted successful campaigns for municipal ownership in their respective cities, but they perceive that there is a vast difference between the ownership of natural monopolies by a city and the ownership of competitive utilities like railroads by either the State or Federal governments. In the North and East the Democratic press, almost without exception, has assumed the same attitude as the Southern journals.

Mr. BurlerSON Wants Facts.

Shortly after the short session of Congress convenes at least two or three resolutions intended to elicit information as to the immediate effects of public ownership of railways will be introduced.

The author of one of these will be Representative BurlerSON, of Texas, who is keenly interested in the subject, and who while he inclines to the opinion that the theory of government ownership is a beautiful thing, believes that in practice the results would probably be disastrous.

So far as municipal ownership is concerned, Mr. BurlerSON thinks it should be applied to natural monopolies like water and lighting plants, especially in well-governed cities like Washington, where graft does not exist, and where such soundly as have been disgraced Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago, and other municipalities have never been known. But government ownership of railways, he realizes, is quite a different thing.

It is reasonable to infer, he thinks, that the operation of the railways by the federal government and the various State governments would inevitably invite graft and inefficient management, since the recent exposures in the Post-office Department have indicated what possibilities exist in that direction. In order that the public may have the benefit of information as to the approximate degree of the burden it would be compelled to assume were the railways government-owned, it is his purpose to offer a resolution calling for a full and complete investigation of the railways of the country, the bonded indebtedness, and other details of interest in the premises.

Senator Bailey, of Texas, is also looking into the subject with the idea of making a speech on it some time during the coming session. Mr. Bailey has been a consistent opponent of government ownership throughout his public career, and if he does address the Senate on the topic, some very vivid recollections will be added. Since both Houses of Congress contain members who entertain the opposite view, it is quite possible that a discussion will be precipitated which will bring out most of the available data on both sides of the question.

Immense Value of Railways.

Figures contained in the last annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission are of interest, as indicating the debt of the people of the United States would be compelled to assume were the government to acquire the railways. The par value of the amount of railway capital outstanding on June 30, 1904, was $13,213,124,679. This represented a capitalization of $4,265 per mile for all the railways in the United States at that time. Of this capital, stock comprised $3,339,592,229, of which $5,690,529,469 was common stock, and the remainder, $1,289,369,880, was preferred stock. The remaining part, $6,573,255,350, was funded debt, consisting of mortgage bonds, $5,646,000,000; floating bonds, $727,145,850; income bonds, $1,000,000,000; and equipment trust obligations, $173,234,684. Current liabilities, which, as a general statement, have relation to the operation of the railways, the construction and equipment of a road, amounted to $881,626,720, or $4.28 per mile, in the year, 1904.

Of the total capital stock outstanding, $2,694,439,000, or 43.3 per cent, paid no dividends. The amount of dividends declared during the year was $221,941,049, and was equivalent to 6.09 per cent on dividend-paying stock. For the year ended June 30, 1905, the amount of dividends declared was $198,728,178. Of the total amount of stock outstanding 5.8 per cent paid from 1 to 4 per cent; 14.6 per cent paid from 4 to 5 per cent; 10.6 per cent paid from 5 to 6 per cent; 8.5 per cent paid from 6 to 7 per cent; and 2.5 per cent paid from 7 to 8 per cent. The amount of funded debt that paid no interest (excluding equipment trust obligations) was $300,941,215, or 4.6 per cent of the whole. Of mortgage bonds, $175,817,962, or 3.1 per cent; of floating bonds, $727,145,850, or 8.4 per cent; and of income bonds, $1,000,000,000, or 7.8 per cent paid no interest. Of the total amount of railway stock outstanding the ownership of $558,472,242 railway bonds.

Public Debt Would Soar.

The next annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission will bring these figures down to date, and the public will then have an opportunity to see just what amount of money the Federal government would have to turn over to the railway owners in the event of the adoption of public ownership. Of course, this is leaving out of the question all such matters as ways and means of acquisition, the appraisal of values, &c. Could the railways be taken over at the par value of the stock outstanding, the debt which would be immediately saddled on the people would be more than triteen times the present public debt of the country, and the per capita indebtedness would soar from $11.91 to approximately $119. Then there would arise the question of whether the government should operate the railways as economically and efficiently as the private companies, whether freight and passenger rates could be lowered, and whether there could be deficits or surpluses at the end of each year.

While there does not appear to be anything approaching a general desire for public ownership in this country just now, it is obvious that some very well informed favor the idea. Within the last few days Mr. Bryan has come into possession of a pamphlet written about a year ago by Chairman Martin A. Knapp, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in which that gentleman exhibited a decided leaning toward government ownership. Mr. Bryan, according to advice received here, will print and distribute a very large number of these pamphlets for the purpose of showing that the head of the Interstate Commerce Commission, a man who ought to know as much about the subject as anybody else in the country, is at least not averse to the ownership of the existing means of communication by the government. The pamphlet was written for a local economic society, and has never been generally circulated.

GEORGE CURTIS MARRIED.

Former Central High Athlete Weds Miss Jessie Weaver.

The announcement was received here yesterday of the marriage on Saturday last, in Gibsonia, Pa., of George W. Curtis, formerly of this city, and Miss Jessie Reynolds Weaver, daughter of Mrs. Kate Bigham Weaver, of Gibsonia.

George Curtis is known here as the greatest all-round athlete who ever graduated from the Washington High school. He was in the class of '98, of the Central School. For four years he played football on the football team, and in the high school track and field championships won more points than any other boy who ever competed. He was a four-time winner in the high jump and pole vault, and also won the broad jump, shot put, and low hurdles two years. In his last year he won the high and broad jumps, the hurdles, the pole vault, and the shot put, scoring 25 points. He was also a member of the basketball team that won the national high school championship at the Pennsylvania relay races in 1902 and 1903.

After graduating from the local schools, Curtis entered Princeton in the class of 1902, and for three years scored points in the high jump in the intercollegiate championships. Since 1902 he has been with the Pennsylvania railroad, his headquarters now being in the New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis will be at home at 221 North Seventh street, Camden, N. J., after December 1.

While Julius was indulging in these thoughts, Sir Simon had taken up the will to gaze over it. He also if he would have been surprised, and he was, by a few moments. Rather surprised, the lawyer did so, thinking the old man changeable. When alone with his legal adviser the baronet walked to the fire and thrust the will into it. Durham could not forbear an ejaculation of surprise, "What's that for?"

"To punish Julius," said Sir Simon, placidly returning to his seat, as though he had done nothing out of the way. He is a mean sneak. He told me about Bernard being in love with that girl so as to create trouble."

"But you don't approve of the match?" "No, I certainly do not, and I dare say that when I insisted on Bernard marrying Miss Perry that the truth would have come out. All the same, it was none of my business to make mischief. Besides, he is a sly creature, and I made it my duty to favor, who knows but that he might not contrive to get me out of the way?"

"No," said Durham, thoughtfully, but will be pleased by Bernard's sake that he will have been destroyed. "I don't think he has courage to do that. Besides, people don't murder nowadays."

"Don't they?" said Sir Simon; "look in the newspapers."

"I mean that what you think Julius might do is worthy of a novel. I don't fancy novels are true to life."

"Anything Julius did would be just like a novel. I tell you, Durham, he is a villain in the high jump and pole vault, and also won the broad jump, shot put, and low hurdles two years. In his last year he won the high and broad jumps, the hurdles, the pole vault, and the shot put, scoring 25 points.
